of September 21, when the dismembered torse of a woman was found in a dresssuit case floating in the harber, was brought into prominence again into today when a second suit case was found in the Charles River. The case found to-day contained the arms and legs, said by medical experts to be those of a woman, and the police say there is no doubt but that they are the missing members of the torse.

With the finding of the limbs there is now a chance that the victim of the tragedy may be identified, as on one of the hands there were three rings. Two of the rings were on the ring finger of the right hand and the third was on the little finger of the same hand.

The parabroker who sold the case in which the torse was found to-day identified the case in which the legs and arms were found as one he sold the purchaser of the first case. Oil cloth similar to that found about the torse was also found in the case recovered to-day. RIVER NEWS.
